EDITOR IN DISTRESS

Today (Well Wednesday if you're reading this on another day) I'll be driving back to my parents in West Texas. It's a nice five and half hour drive. I usually don't mind the drive down there. It gives me lots of time to think things over and boy do I have a lot on my mind which I won't bore ya with. I do hate the drive back, probably because it usually means I have to work the next day. I like going to my parents though. It's a nice break from reality. I get to sit around all day and watch movies. My mom cooks me all of my favorite dishes which I'm too lazy to make on my own. I do sometimes get overwhelmed by my relatives who ask me the same questions over and over again when I just want to be left alone to watch TV and eat. It's sort of like going to see your favorite dancer at the strip club. You mainly want to see her, but while you're waiting for her to get off the stage you start getting hustled by the other dancers. I shouldn't really complain. I ask them the same questions. Now this has got me thinking about a band interview I'll be doing later this week with Chimaira who'll be playing with Trivium at House of Blues Sunday, December 6. I think since this is an adult oriented magazine that I'll go a head and ask them mainly questions about strip clubs and porn to change it up for them.

I'm almost tempted to drive to my parents on Thanksgiving Day. I just found out my friend Sonny is playing guitar in Oakland, Ca's Saviours and they opening for 3 Inches Of Blood at Rubber Gloves in Denton (Show info on page 6). I so want to go, but I'm worried I'll drink too much and have a bad hang over in the morning, like I do now. The Cowboys play at 3pm and I gotta watch that with my dad. So I would have to leave Dallas by 9am. Yeah, I think I better leave Wednesday after work. Sorry bro! See you next time.

So, yeah I got a hang over and it's all because I can't say no to pretty ladies. I went to the Fall Out Lounge in Exposition Park last night to see an early show. Plus my friend Stefan was back from his European tour and was djing that night, but I was really there to hang out with a pretty girl. Well I tried to leave like three times and each time she would say "don't go, have one more drink." Or "I need a ride to my friends who lives by you. Let's have one more drink and than leave." I told her I needed to get up early, so around one am I finally put my foot down and said I'm leaving and I finally left... a bit cranky. Why aren't our phones drunk proof. I'll sent a few mean text messages out last night. Oh well. So, why worry? -Gil Tha Thrill

Tragic Death For Bunny Ranch Working Girl

In what could only be described as a tragic chapter in the history of The Moonlite Bunny Ranch, bunny Hayden Brooks was murdered earlier this month along with four others in her home state of Oklahoma. Hayden had taken some time off from The Ranch after learning that she was pregnant. She has been seen on HBO's "Cathouse" series that documents life for the working girls of The Bunny Ranch. Following the murders, the Oklahoma City rental house that she and the three other victims occupied was set on fire. Both Brooks and fellow victim Milagrossa Barrera were pregnant at the time of their death, raising the murder count to six. The victims have been identified as Jennifer Lynn Ermey, 25, of Edmond; Casey Mark Barrientos, 32, of Oklahoma City; Milagros C. Barrera, 22, of Mustang; and Brooke Phillips (Hayden Brooks), 22, of Moore.

always in a great mood, well liked by the other girls at The Ranch. As someone who has had many opportunities to observe life at the northern Nevada legal brothel through my numerous radio broadcasts there, I can attest that such a quality of affability would in deed be greatly appreciated by the other girls there. A former coworker and friend of hers echoed that flattering description of her to me, while expressing her disgust at the senseless way that she died.

David Tyner is due back in court on December 3rd. He will almost certainly face Oklahoma's death penalty at trial. A very sad story, and a sobering reminder that adult performers of all kinds are real people, susceptible just as we all are to the bad people that walk among us.

Ex Marine David Allen Tyner has been charged with the killings. The Oklahoma District Attorney's office officially filed six counts of first degree murder against Tyner on Friday. Indicating that the murders may have been drug related, police reportedly seized a digital scale, marijuana, and various sizes and quantities of zip lock bags. Tyner, age 28, is also a former cage fighter. He surrendered to police following a witness account that placed him at the scene. Jose Fernando Fierro, the renter of the house, escaped before the killings. He continues to be questioned by police.

This past week, I had occasion to speak with both Bunny Ranch owner Dennis Hof and one of his former employees who knew Hayden about the murder. Hof described her as a girl who was Canadian metallers 3 Inches Of Blood are returning to Texas on their BloodyDisgusting.com sponsored headlining North American tour and will be playing at Rubber Gloves in Denton with tour mates Saviours and Holy Grail.

The Canadian metal masters appeared on G4 TV earlier this week to discuss their unique brand of metal and reveal how being included on the soundtracks to blockbuster videogames, including the recent Brutal Legend has helped earn them a legion of new fans. You can view that appearance here:

Hayes Carll
 w/ Graham Wilkinson
 Saturday, Nov. 28
 Sons of Hermann Hall
 3414 Elm Street, Dallas, TX

Hayes Carll, is a singer-songwriter from The Woodlands, Texas who is currently signed to Lost Highway Records.

Carll got his first guitar at age 15. He began writing songs influenced by Bob Dylan, Kris Kristofferson, John Prine, Jack Kerouac and Dead Poets Society.

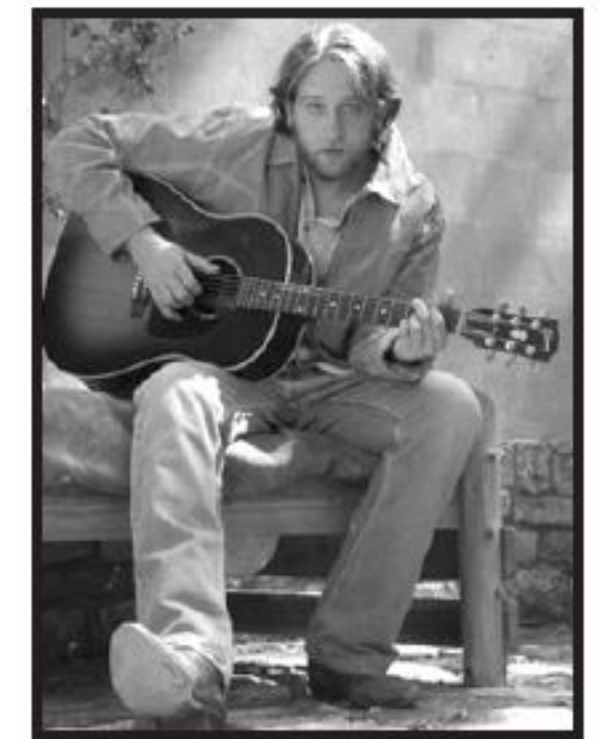

Carll tried his luck in Austin, where, despite the thriving music scene, success eluded him. Carll left Austin and returned home, playing regularly at McGonigal's Mucky Duck and other places in Houston and Galveston. After developing a following, Carll signed a one-album contract with Compadre Records, which released his debut Flowers and Liquor in 2002. Embraced by critics, the album garnered comparisons to Townes Van Zandt. The Houston Press named him the best folk act and best new artist of 2002. Carll's songs combined ragged tunes with autobiographical lyrics, including themes about lazy solitude, strumming his guitar, and drowning his sorrows in alcohol.

He turned down a multi-album deal from Sugar Hill Records, then released his second album, Little Rock under his own label, Highway 87 Records. It was produced by notable country music figure R.S. Field. It became the first self-released album to reach number one on the Americana music charts. In May 2006, Carll announced that he had signed with Lost Highway records.

Hayes has written songs with Ray Wylie Hubbard and Guy Clark. Carll has found success on the national Americana radio charts, receiving an Americana Award for Little Rock. He is considered an important figure in the resurgence of Texas songwriters, writing in the Dylan-influenced tradition of Clark and Townes Van Zandt. Be sure to see this true Texas writer at Son's of Hermann Hall this Saturday.

Megadeth
 w/ Machine Head, Suicide Silence and Arcanium
 Wednesday, Dec. 2
 The Palladium Ballroom,
 1135 South Lamar, Dallas, TX

Dave Mustaine's Megadeth is back again to wreck havoc on Dallas and this time they have brought with them Oakland O.G. thrashers Machine Head fresh from their tour with Metallica. I'm definitely looking forward to seeing this show. Megadeth and Machine Head were both bands I listened to when I started added metal, especially bay area thrash metal to my punk and hardcore record collection in the late 80's and early 90's. Pre Machine Head band Vio-Lence was a special favorite of mine. During the whole nu-metal era Machine Head had a few bad releases but they are now back to their roots thrashing faster and harder than anyone else. I expect to see lots of white high tops and denim vest at this show. -Gil Tha Thrill

Your ROCK never

I wish to thank Miss Hannah Hokes for filling in for me last week in this column as I had that damned flu. However, I do need to correct her on her review of The Hickoids Hairy Chafin' EP when she credited Jeff Smith for singing on "Side by Side Doublewide," when it was in fact Davy Jones who did the writing and singing (not a good way to get to do a duet with someone, Hannah -- check the liner notes next time).

Get it at www.hickoids.com or www.myspace.com/hickoids

"Clint from MVD must think I am a hippie or something," I thought when I opened a package from him and found The Zombies: Odessey and Oracle (Revisited). This is a filming of The Zombies' (band) concert celebrating the 40th anniversary of their seminal release way back in the olden days when you could smoke pot and get semi-naked freely at a rock show. Filmed at the Shepherd's Bush Empire in London, England in March of last year, it is a great film and soundtrack, featuring songs from not only The Zombies, but singer Colin Blunstone's solo efforts and Rod Argent's Argent. Speaking of Rod Argent... ladies, all I have to say is the years have been extremely kind to that man!!!

Besides original members Blunstone on vocals and Argent manning all the keyboards, the line-up includes founding members bassist Chris White and drummer Hugh Grundy (guitarist Paul Atkinson passed away in 2004). The Zombies Touring Band is comprised of father/son Jim and Steve Rodford (bass and drums/percussion) and Keith Airey (guitar) as well as the string quartet of Peter Hansen, Jayne Spencer and Chris Pittsdale (violins), Robin Michael (cello) and Alan Taylor (string bass).

As for the music, it's a stellar history of the band and its members. Beginning with their earliest hits and some music from the solo projects, the songs are "I Love You," "Sticks and Stones," "Can't Nobody Love You," "What Becomes Of The Broken Hearted," "Misty Roses," "Her Song," "Say You Don't Mind," Argent's "Keep On Rolling" and "Hold Your Head Up," "Care of Cell 44," "A Rose For Emily," "Maybe After He's Gone."

And when the band shifts gears and plays the entirety of Odessey and Oracle, it truly is a trip back in time with "Beechwood Park," "Brief Candles," "Hung Up On A Dream," "Changes," "I Want Her, She Wants Me," "This Will Be Our Year," "Butcher's Tale," "Friends Of Mine," the mind-blowing "Time Of The Season," "Tell Her No," and "She's Not There."

Throw in an introduction by producer and legendary musician in his own right Al Kooper, and additional interview footage from the band as they talk about how Odessey and Oracle was their last release, the one they didn't think would do anything for the band at all, and it is a revelation and testament to what a truly fine group of musicians they are. And like the monsters from which they took their band name, it seems The Zombies' music will never die.

BLAKE'S Joke of the week

This guy wakes up out of a deep sleep and, feeling real horny, nudges his wife awake and asks, "Why don't we get it on, eh?"

She replies, "I have an appointment at the gynecologist tomorrow and you know I don't like to make love the night before."

So the husband agrees and rolled back over and started to go back to sleep.

A few minutes later, he nudges his wife again and asks, "You don't by any chance have a dentist's appointment tomorrow, do you?"

IT'S HARD TO FIND A GOOD DONKEY SHOW

The Weekly Adventures Of OJ Tobias

Every other week I got issues.

Seems like I can't do shit right.

I forgot to water my pot plants.

I didn't roll any of my pet bums at the right time, which is always after 7pm but before 7:15. Traffic slows down then and they try to by liquor real quick. So this week, instead of a couple hundred bucks, all I got was half-drunk bottles of White Wolf vodka. Those nasty bastards don't use a glass so I have to find some lonely alchie to buy the shit.

But considering this week is Thanksfkinggiving, it is not politically correct to bitch about shit. So I made a list of things I am thankful for.

1. The police department doesn't know I got a new ride.
2. My wife finally left me. (Fk, it only took 10 years. You would think fking someone else on our wedding night would have given her a clue! I guess it's my fault for dating the "smart ones.")
3. My son has stopped calling me "that guy." Now he calls me "that dude." I am working on him calling me "buddy" then maybe "Oj". I don't want to get too close to the kid... he is still young enough to sell.
4. The STD cleared up.
5. The liquor store gives me a discount.
6. My bookie had a stroke and can't remember how much I owe him.
7. I manage a titty bar for a living... priceless.

METRO ANE SPORTS

BARKIN' OUT LOUD

by Pat "Two Dogs" Snow

As we approach this year's Thanksgiving holiday, many non-sports type people will be preparing meals, entertaining families and friends, and sharing thoughts of the past and hopes of the future. Indeed, they'll be grateful for life's bounties.

Sports people aren't so different, we just treat T-Day a wee tad differently. For us, it's the pivot day of the NFL season. After this weekend there'll be only five regular season games left, four in December and one to bring in the new year.

So on Thanksgiving Day, us sports fans will make sure there's new batteries in the remote, wipe kid's fingerprints off the screen, deep fry a turkey, chow down on some good eats, and get ready for a day of some serious football watchin'.

What do us sports fans got cookin'? We got THREE NFL and one NCAAF games. Prime time and truly America's game: this is the kinda day that almost brings a tear to a sports guy's eye. We smile over past victories and grimace at old defeats. We dream of how our team is gonna finish out the schedule, victorious and ready to charge the hated foes. And maybe as we're dozin' just a bit on the couch, we think back on how the early pilgrims were getting ready to score the big goal against the Indians.....

Just what NCAAF game is on Thursday? The Longhorns at Aggies, 7 pm. This game WILL be more than just filler between games 2 and 3 of the NFL. Texas needs the win to keep its drive alive for the National Championship. Texas A&M, well, they could play for pride, sure, but it'd be a heck'uva sweeter dessert for them if they could trounce their arch rivals on national tv and waylay their shot at the title. Yepper, this will be the game to have that extra little helping of turkey and gravy, maybe that second piece of pumpkin pie. Man oh man, ain't Thanksgiving great.

Ok, you had that Cowboys victory over the Redskins settle in your stomach like a hunk of coal. Yeah, the W's great, but it made you very concerned about what that offense can do to finish out. You've been listening to talk radio and they've got you so concerned that our offense is lousy that you're ready to visit a shrink and get some Trank's to calm yourself down.

Do you really have any reason to be worried? Well, considering the closers are: at the Giants, host the Chargers, at the Saints, at the Redskins, and end hosting the Eagles, well heck yeah you got reason to be worried. Not only that, the lowly Raiders (that we host on T-Day) just knocked off the Bengals, a team whose offense is not shy about scoring points.

What's the worst case scenario? We lose all six and finish 7-9, the Emmitt Smith prediction. How likely is that? Well, sweeping both the Eagles and Redskins in the same season is a very difficult task, so if we split the season it means we lose those two. The Saints don't appear to be too worried about beating anybody so a loss there is likely. The Chargers started slow and are coming on hot, so that loss is likely.

What about the Raiders? Hey, this backup QB they've put in is no rookie and is probably the best backup in the league right now. He also faced the Cowboys on Thanksgiving Day of 2006 while playing as a rookie with Tampa Bay. They lost, but when he's got support he plays well. The difference will be the defenses.

So, the next scenario is we take one of six and end 8-8, which is what most touts predicted at the start of the season. What does Two Dogs think?

Out of the remaining six do we have victories? I say we win at least three of them. That's right, I think we finish no worse than 10-6. How likely is that? In my book, highly.

What teams do we take? Raiders, Giants, and Redskins. Any other victories in there? Yes, it is possible we take the Chargers, the Eagles, or both. Any hope of taking the Saints? The way the offense is playing right now, no. Our defense is very good and it's very likely we'll hold the Saints to maybe their lowest scoring of the season, but unless our offense puts up points, and sustains drives, that effort will be lost.

For this Cowboys offense, which down is the most important? First. Getting good yardage on first down is critical for this group because that makes getting to third and shorts a lot easier. This team needs short yardage situations for third downs conversions. Why? Unless the passing game gets open more consistently, defenses will stack the line against the run. Right now we're a one dimensional offense, meaning the running game is superior to the passing game.

I know everybody is just hungry for football, but we got some hockey and basketball to yak about.

Have you been taking an interest in the Dallas Stars this season? If not, or only so so, then you really need to get a few games under your belt. As of this writing they're sitting ninth in the Western Conference with 26 points, that's ten points below division and conference leading San Jose.

We're just now going past the first quarter of the season and this team is beginning to get some identity to it. It's fast. Yessir, but not just individuals, as a team they're faster. They're also beginning to pick up the defensive philosophy of the new system. What does that mean? That there is more natural reaction than having to think things out as they're going along.

Crawford's having a curious time in trying to find a good fit for both Modano and Ribeiro. Both appear to be better assist players than scorers. This isn't too bad as hockey, like basketball, needs setup men. But, you still have to have your most expensive players finding the back of the net and that's just not happening. Some of this has to do with fitting into the new system, which we'll know more by the halfway mark.

I know, I know, you love your Dallas Mavericks. For my comments doubting this group of Mav's players many of you want me to stick my head in a bucket, eat humble pie, eat stale cheese, that sort of thing. Well, I'm not gonna. Nope.

Why? I'm still not convinced about this team. Why not, especially when their record is so good? Hey, we're not even a quarter the way into this season. Yes the Mav's are sitting on top of the Southwest division and basically tied for first in the Western Conference, but c'mon, there's still like seventy games to play.

Do I find anything good to talk about them? You bet. The last game against the Spurs they stayed mentally focused and tough the whole game. This isn't a condition the Mav's are known for. The issue for me is that we see more of this, and I want to see it against top talent, like Denver and Portland, the Lakers and Suns, and Houston. I also want to see what they do against the East. Let's give them some more time to figure out what they're about before we go about tossing rose petals in their paths.

NFL week 11 review

Ain't nobody sane on this continent that thought the Chiefs were gonna upset the Steelers, plus knock Roethlisberger out and out of the game. But what's worse is nobody sane on this planet thought the Raiders would beat the Bengals.

The Colts barely squeaked out a win over the Ravens, and the Saints pounded the snot out of the Buc's, leaving these two the only undefeated at 10-0 each. It's so weird to use the words Saints and undefeated together.

Yes, the Giants dropped the Falcons going to 6-4 but don't be thinking this is a resurgence of their game. Atlanta's QB Ryan got hit with a serious case of the sophomore year blues, and so did Baltimore's Flacco, both teams now sitting at 5-5.

The Chargers flew into Denver on a jet stream, pounced on the Broncos with supersonic speed, then Astro-blasted their way back outta there. Denver's still trying to figure out what bombed 'em.

NFL week 12

Thanksgiving Day

These two were gonna be flat tires but with two key injuries to the Pack D and the Raiders back-up QB lighting it up, things suddenly got very interesting: Packers (6-4, road 2-2) at Lions (2-8, home 2-3), and Raiders (3-7, road 1-3) at Cowboys (7-3, home 4-1). Detroit's always the nooner, the 'Boy's the 3 o'clock.

Who knows how this one will play out but it oughta be a doozy: Giants (6-4, road 3-2) at Broncos (6-4, home 3-2). Normally the book would call this game a push, meaning both teams closely matched, and maybe they are, but is that for poor play? 8:30 game.

Sunday noon games

The only thing good in a cellar is wine, these games don't taste that good: Seahawks (3-7, road 0-5) at Rams (1-9, home 0-5), Buc's (1-9, road 0-4) at Falcons (5-5, home 4-0), and Browns (1-9, road 1-5) at Bengals (7-3, home 3-2).

Mediocre is a step up from the cellar but it don't take the dew off the grass: Panthers (4-6, road 2-3) at Jet's (4-6, home 2-3), and Dolphins (5-5, road 2-3) at Bills (3-7, home 1-3).

This one gonna get the cobwebs outta the eyes: Redskins (3-7, road 0-5) at Eagles (6-4, home 3-2). Cheer for those Redskins.

This one's the early game to watch: Colts (10-0) at Texans (5-4, home 2-2). Houston doggone near knocked Indy out last time, and this one's gonna do 'er.

3 o'clock games

Strange but true, people are taking the Chiefs (3-7, road 2-3) over the Chargers (7-3, home 3-2). Da dum da dum da dum. But it'll get more interest than the Bears (4-6, road 1-4) at Vikings (9-1, home 5-0).

Jag's (6-4, road 2-3) at 49er's (4-6, home 3-2) ain't noteworthy but good defense.

The afternoon good game that wasn't supposed to be: Card's (7-3, road 5-0) at Titans (3-6, home 2-2). Arizona won't underestimate the Titans running game.

8:30 pm game

Both teams got it on the line tonight and it'll be a bruiser: Steelers (6-4, road 2-3) at Ravens (5-5, home 3-2). A division game with tons riding on it. Get ready.

Monday Night Football

Call this one of the best games of the year: Patriots (7-3, road 1-3) at Saints (10-0). If I were ya'll I'd take off from work just to spend the day getting ready for this one. New England's got their own experience dealing with undefeated seasons, and they'll have some surprises for New Orleans. Make up a BIG batch of gumbo to eat with this.

Readers Response:

Two Dogs:

How is it that coaches like Cable and Mangini have jobs and coaches like Holmgren and Shanahan don't? Why don't the owners fire those guys, like Jauron from the Bills just got nailed in the middle of the season? Aren't the owners partly to blame in all this?

Jorge
Bedford

Jorge:

C'mon, guy, Holmgren stepped down on his own to take some time off with his family, he'll be available again. Even though he was fired, Shanahan could've easily have had a job. Both men have the credentials that allows them to be very selective for what they take, meaning some guys have to work for somebody like Al Davis and the Raiders (Cable) or Lerner and the Browns (Mangini), but guys like Holmgren and Shanahan can take much better jobs. Jauron was a good man and dedicated to the game so he basically was allowed to last into his third year, but no player or game improvement nailed him. Cable is under serious personal and professional scrutiny and only winning a large number of the remaining games will save him. Mangini has made some seriously bad decisions, well beyond marginal, and I doubt if he's retained after this season. Owners never view themselves as the problem, didn't you know that?

TD

Two Dogs:

I don't care what anybody says, Dallas's win over the Redskins was boring, the offense was ineffective, and the defense can't stop third down plays. Jones needs to fire Jason Garrett and bring in a new offensive coordinator, and since Phillips doesn't have the muscle to say anything to Garrett, then replace him too. The Eagles will pass us in the division and we'll lose out on the wild card, so we won't make the post season AGAIN. That's how a win is horrible. All's it did was lower us in the draft, but since Jones likes to give away draft choices for receivers like Roy Williams, what good are they for us anyway? And YOU'RE stupid for talking these guys up.

Paul
Eagle Pass

Paul:

You're not exactly going down in history as the football genius you think you are. Boring wasn't the reason we won, or why the offense struggled. Here's a clue, slick, go talk to a local coach and find out how the game of football is played. I recommend that because Dummies doesn't have a book that would talk down low enough to your level. The Bronco's were 6-0 and now 6-4 losing four in a row. Now doesn't that W feel better?

TD

Two Dogs:

They're calling the Lions Browns game the most exciting game of the week, but you labeled it a nothing game for losers. Stafford and Quinn played more exciting and better ball than anybody else last game. You're the loser.

Shawn
Lake Highlands

Shawn:

Two bottom dwellers with no defenses playing a game with actual TD's being scored does not a football game make. Maybe you should travel down to Eagle Pass and play marbles with Paul, he's looking for someone with your brain power.

TD

Two Dogs:

My husband was telling me about a coach that cried after his team lost and he's being ridiculed around the country for this. Is this true? If it is, what's so wrong with a man showing emotion? Maybe if more REAL men were to show their feelings there'd be far less problems in the world.

LaMaya
Dallas

LaMaya:

Yes, it's true. New York Jets head coach Rex Ryan was seen on camera with a couple of tears on his cheeks after a loss. Yes, it's also true that many are teasing him, on tv, radio, and print. I'm not Einstein but I just sorta kinda doubt that men showing their emotions would subtract many problems from this planet.

Johnson Wins 4th Straight NASCAR Championship

The nickname "Four-Time" was claimed long ago by Jeff Gordon, leaving Jimmie Johnson in search of a fresh moniker to cap his record-setting fourth consecutive NASCAR championship.

His Hendrick Motorsports team had it covered.

They call Johnson "Shark" for his "relentless attack on the competition, especially when he smells blood," said general manager Marshall Carlson.

Johnson never let up in his chase for a championship, or his chase of NASCAR history.

The most dominant driver of this decade wrapped up another title Sunday night at Homestead-Miami Speedway, where he raced hard to finish fifth when 25th place would have gotten the job done.

Johnson's total trails only the seven titles won by Richard Petty and Dale Earnhardt, and he's now tied with teammate Gordon.

The 34-year-old Californian bulldozed his way into the record books, pouncing when the 10-race Chase for the Sprint Cup championship began to pull team owner Rick Hendrick into the record books with him. Johnson's title gave a record 12th overall championship to Hendrick, who was in North Carolina with a niece who was undergoing an emergency liver transplant.

In his absence, Johnson, Mark Martin and Gordon celebrated a 1-2-3 finish in the final points standings, just the second time in NASCAR history a team owner has swept the standings.

Johnson now stands atop NASCAR as a one-man dynasty, much like Tiger Woods, Roger Federer and Lance Armstrong in their sports.

Mercedes-Benz Splitview Technology To Make U.S. Debut At LA Show

The Mercedes-Benz S-Class has long been a hotbed for automotive innovation, and the large German sedan will continue that tradition at the 2009

Los Angeles Auto Show. Following its world debut last December, Mercedes-Benz' Splitview technology will make its U.S. debut next month.

Co-developed between Mercedes-Benz and Bosch, the Splitview technology allows for dual-use of the S-Class' center-mounted LCD screen. The system allows the driver to have access to the vehicle's navigation system while the front seat passenger can watch a DVD on the very same screen.

Mercedes-Benz' Splitview technology was originally slated to hit the market a few months ago, but was ultimately delayed. Mercedes failed to give a reason for the delay, but it was likely tied to legality concerns over the system. In August, Jaguar design head Ian Callum stated the system was "technically illegal". Apparently, the NHTSA has given the technology a pass.

The Jaguar XJ is available with a similar dual-view technology in other parts of the world, but the British automaker has yet to announce if its version of the technology will be following the S-Class' to the United States.

Lexus Will Only Offer The LFA For Lease

Lexus' all-new LFA promises to be one of the hottest supercars you can't own. In a bid to prevent speculators from buying up the LFA's limited production run of 500 units, Lexus announced on Monday that it will only be leasing the six-figure super coupe.

Automotive entrepreneurs have been known to resell sales of limited edition vehicles only to resell them at a much higher price, but that won't be the case with the Lexus LFA. "If someone buys it the first month and then decides to sell it, that could be damaging to the ownership experience," Brian Smith, vice president of sales and dealer development for Lexus, told Automotive News. "If it is not controlled and hits the speculation market, all bets are off."

As such, Lexus will only offer the $375,000 LFA for a two-year lease. Lexus plans to build 500 examples of the LFA over its two year production run. However, Lexus will give customers the chance to buy the LFA off-lease.

Production of the LFA is expected to begin in December 2010. Because Lexus will be providing tools and specially trained technicians to service the LFA – therefore eliminating the need for Lexus stores to purchase unique tools or provide special training – customers will be able to buy the 552 horsepower supercar at any Lexus dealership.

The Lexus LFA will make its U.S. debut at next month's LAAuto Show.

H1N1 Destroying UV Wand

While vaccines for the H1N1 flu virus is ready to be used, not all countries are going to get it. Still, the initial fear of catching this potentially fatal virus has somewhat died down, with less and less people being seen wearing face masks these days when outdoors. As for folks who do not want to take the chance, there is the H1N1 Destroying UV Wand from Hammacher to help you out.

This UV wand eliminates the H1N1 virus from surfaces using safe UV-C light – the same technology trusted to sanitize hospital surfaces. Tests performed by an independent antimicrobial testing laboratory showed the wand destroyed 99.98% of the H1N1 virus after a five-second exposure when held 3/4" above the contaminated surface. Also capable of killing MRSA, mold, and dust mites, the UV-C light penetrates viral and bacterial membranes and destroys their DNA, rendering the microorganisms incapable of reproduction and survival. Unlike liquid disinfectants, UV-C light can sanitize keyboards, upholstered furniture, cell phones, or any delicate surface that harbors germs. The cordless wand shuts off automatically if the light is turned upward. Operates for 90 minutes after an eight-hour charge via AC.

$69.95 for the H1N1 Destroying UV Wand sure beats paying hefty hospital bills if you were to be admitted, but what are the odds of you catching it? Also, isn't this a case of being a little too late? We're pretty sure it might've done much better when released at the peak of the virus' spread.

Adjustable Measuring Cup and Scoop

Stop the clanging ruckus caused by frantic searches for measuring spoons in your kitchen tool drawer. Stop it now. Innovation, even on the most simplistic devices never fails to astound and the Nuscups are a prime example. To select different measurements, simply adjust the thumb slider to match the amount you want and scoop. Labeled in both Metric and English scales, the tool is equipped to dial up whatever your recipe calls, for no matter if it comes from an American chef or someone across the pond.

Dishwasher safe, Nuscups even have a magnet for attaching to your fridge when not in use and are sold in a variety of sizes depending on your requirements. All in all, we think they're pretty brilliant and, if you hear a strange tinkling sound near our offices, don't worry. That's just Dusty "Tim Taylor" Overby trying to re-purpose our old measuring spoons as wind chimes in the GP kitchen.

Parrot Switch Plate Plays Voice Memos When You Turn The Lights On

If you have trouble with communication in your family, sometimes you have to get creative. Sure, in this age of cell phones and text messaging, it's easy to send someone a reminder. However, Making sure they are told something at the right time is an important factor. Lets say you want someone to get your message as soon as they walk into the house. This Parrot Digital Messaging Switch Plate can help with that very thing.

The device is simple enough, allowing you to record a 20-second message which will be played back when the switch is turned on. I can see this as something parents might use to remind their children of chores when they get home from school. It's only $9.99 and installs in the same manner as any other switch plate (it gets power from 4x AAA batteries).

Transport Employee Accused Of Sex With Inmate

A Kentucky man working for a private company that transports prisoners has been indicted on a charge of traveling in interstate commerce to engage in sex with an inmate.

Prosecutors say that in January, 50-year-old Albert Preston Long of Florence allegedly carried one female prisoner and three male prisoners from Murfreesboro, Tenn., to Hopkinsville, where he lodged the three males in the Christian County jail but checked into a motel with the 22-year-old woman. Prosecutors cite a Federal Bureau of Investigation affidavit alleging Long, who was wearing a gun, forced the inmate to have sex.

The U.S. attorney's office says in a statement that the same thing happened again after Long and the inmates went on to Paducah.

Prosecutors say Long is also charged with deprivation of rights under color of law, being a felon in possession of a firearm, using the firearm in the course of a crime and forfeiture.

Co-Ed Dorms Fuel Unhealthy Behaviour, Sex, Drinking

The study found that university students in coed housing are 2.5 times more likely to binge drink every week, and that they are also likely to have more sexual partners, and use pornography more.

Some 90 percent of U.S. college dorms are now coed, and the study conducted on 500 students from five college campuses showed that 42 percent of students in coed housing reported binge drinking on a weekly basis, and 18 percent of students in gender-specific housing reported binge drinking weekly.

While that doesn't put coed housing on par with fraternity and sorority houses, the researchers note that binge drinking isn't exclusively a 'Greek problem'.

College housing offices generally assume students prefer coed housing and give them the option to 'opt out' if single-gender housing is available. Very few exercise that option.

A wealth of information on the study participants allowed the researchers to examine other factors that could predict binge drinking.

Their statistical analysis took into account the effects of age, gender, religiosity, personality and relationship status. The findings are detailed in the Journal of American College Health.

Miss Trinidad And Tobago 2008 Caught In Three-Some Sex Tape Scandal

Miss Trinidad and Tobago 2008 has become the latest beauty to be caught up in a sex tape scandal. Anya Ayong-Chee was named after a video showing her having sex with boyfriend, Wyatt Gallery and another woman in a menage a trios was leaked.

According to TMZ, Gallery confirmed Ayong-Chee featured in the tape that he claimed was shot in 2007, reports The New York Daily News. He alleged the footage was swiped from his laptop while at a repair shop in Trinidad.

The scandal comes after a steamy tape shot by former Miss California USA Carrie Prejean for her ex boyfriend found its way to the public.

Test Results Are Promising For 'Female Viagra' Drug

The launch of the first non-hormonal treatment for women with decreased sex drive could soon become a reality after successful late-stage trials of a pill developed by Germany's Boehringer Ingelheim that increases female sex drive.

"Data from pooled, pivotal Phase III clinical trials demonstrate that flibanserin 100mg taken once daily at bedtime significantly increased the number of Satisfying Sexual Events (SSEs) and sexual desire while significantly decreasing the distress associated with Hypoactive Sexual Desire Disorder (HSDD)," the company said, in a press release issued Monday. "Flibanserin is an investigational compound that is being developed by Boehringer Ingelheim for the treatment of pre-menopausal women with HSDD."

HSDD is a medical condition characterized by a decrease in sexual desire associated with marked distress and/or interpersonal difficulties. Women with HSDD often feel a loss of intimacy and closeness that they used to enjoy. The four Phase III studies involved more than 2,000 pre-menopausal women suffering from HSDD. Results were presented at the congress of the European Society for Sexual Medicine in Lyon, France.

According to Reuters, "Unlike Procter & Gamble's hormone patch Intrinsa, targeted at woman after the menopause, flibanserin directly manipulates the chain of chemical reactions in the brain believed to trigger sexual desire."

Cuba Offers Free Penis Implants

Cuba's government has offered its first free penis implants, part of a program set to be expanded across the communist island, an official newspaper has reported.

It is likely not what Karl Marx had in mind when he imagined a society transformed "from each according to his abilities, to each according to his needs," but Juventud Rebelde reported on Friday that the silicon and silver penis implants are set to become more common.

Men in seven Cuban provinces will be eligible for the procedure, which urologist Juan Carlos Yip boasted was normally "exclusive to first world countries and at a high cost.

"It will be carried out in patients whose sexual suffering does not respond positively to traditional treatments."

Those over 40s and those with diabetes or circulation problems are set to be first in line the paper reported.

Hustler Video has recently crossed two major milestones: the release of the 100th volume in its flagship series, Barely Legal, and the achievement of its highest sales figures ever for a DVD title with the megasmash parody Who's Nailin' Paylin?.

With tens of thousands of copies sold, plus features on Entertainment Tonight and Extra!, three follow-up releases and a fourth on the way, Who's Nailin' Paylin? has captured the hearts and loins of red-blooded Americans across the land.

"Obama's Nailin' Palin and Letterman's Nailin' Palin were huge sellers, but Who's Nailin' Paylin? and You're Nailin' Palin sales are incredible," said Hustler national sales manager David Diamond. "The public has gone Palin crazy, and we are more than happy to oblige!"

Something else with which you can't go wrong is a simple premise that's remained on top for 10 years and 100 installments. That's exactly what Barely Legal, started in 1999 by Clive McLean, has done. Often imitated but never duplicated, Barely Legal has spawned dozens of offshoots and become the most widely-known adult title there is. The series is now helmed by Matti Klatt, who has long been successful in capturing the essence of the young-girl market.

"We wanted to amp up the sex factor with Barely Legal," said Rosenfeld. "Matti's work and his photo sets not only make the talent look flawless but add sensuality to the series, which appeals to a wider audience."

Barely Legal 100 hit streets Tuesday and features young beauties Prinzzess, Katie Michaels, Jasmine Delatori, Heather Starlet, Bella Moretti and Kandi Milan. Hollywood's Nailin' Palin is due out in January 2010.

Sex Mania 2 Adam & Eve

I really liked this dirty compilation from Adam and Eve. 4 hours and 15 scenes of some hardcore sex with everything from girl on girl, 2 guys one girl, DP and interracial.

I have to say my favorite scene is with Melissa Lauren, Talon and Scott Nails from Your Ass is Mine. I saw a preview of this on Fleshbot.com and I wanted more. Then I got this DVD in the mail and realized that scene was on here. Hip Hip Hooray! Anyway I like Melissa's look because she has the goth/alt look I like with the black hair and red streaks. She is definitely the kind of lady I don't want to take home to mom.

European hottie Katja Kassin was another favorite of mine. I'm pretty sure I've seen her before. She has a very seductive look that draws you in, sort like Gina Gershon.

Kate Frost had a very sexy scene where she has sex with a guy at a bar while her friends watch. It's got a dirty Sex and the City feel but with MILFs.

Of course a lot of you are going to want to see the girl/girl with Carmen Luvana and Katie Morgan, who was just in the news. Seems there was false rumors of her getting drunk and arrested. She is smoking hot and you might remember her from "Zack and Miri Make a Porno".

This 4 hour compilation and it's budget price is definitely worth your time. 4 out 5 dude! -Gil Tha Thrill

Bad Girls 2 Digital Playground

Contract stars Riley Steele and Angelina Armani are bad and begging to be punished. Scott and Mick are happy to help discipline Riley in her first boy / boy / girl scene ever! Diamond Kitty and Mina Leigh join the deviant action and offer everything for the taking, including intense anal. Nicole Ray can't decide between two studs, so she handles both of them with equal attention. "Digital Playground's Bad Girls 2" is packed with scandalous chicks who have a one-way ticket to Santa's Naughty List!

Oil And Ass # 2 Elegant Angel

Award winning director, L.T., returns with Oil and Ass 2, a collection of multi-ethnic big booty stars drenched in excessive amounts of oil and featured in passionate hardcore sex scenes. Starring Ice La Fox and Kelly Divine, and a whole host of soaking wet curvaceous stars.

DAMSELS IN DISTRESS GALLERY II

By: Ms. Misha Moré

Those who love bondage know it well: theirs is not a mania, it's an Art. Tying, tightening, pulling, knotting. A few gestures, repeated over and over again, exalted in a sort of rite that acquires its heightened sacredness: carefully studied movements, ropes, that are cleverly wound around the bust, limbs, wrists, ankles and knotted with the utmost care, a predicament position (the upturned foot plants, the head's inclination, the way the body hangs, the tension of muscles).

Some prefer to substitute ropes with silk ribbons not to hurt their victims-accomplices, since this erotic ceremony needs the consent of the one who will have to be made helpless, the woman that, in order to make it all more credible, will have herself gagged with a plaster or a handkerchief, while pretending to wriggle and struggle, opening her eyes wide out of terror.

Just like sweet Gwendolyn who, though repeatedly persecuted and captured by the vicious Sir D'Arcy, enjoyed being tied up and often proposed bondage meetings to her friend, U-69.

Her creator, the well-known John Willie, who could be defined as the first and only prophet of bondage had enclosed a letter he sent to a friend of his brief revelation on the art of tying. He knew every secret, since he himself practised the art with his models, who would go to his attic studio and of whom he took hundreds of pictures to make his drawings as true-to-life as possible.

While John Willie theorize and practised this, about 1951 or so, the New Yorker Irving Klaw prospered with his own anonymous small shop in the heart of the Big Apple. Irving Klaw monopolized the trade of taboo images during that period, especially with bondage, fetishism and light S&M: he commissioned Eric Stanton, Jim Eneag and Jay with comics and illustrations, and he himself, shut with his assistants in the back of his shop, made photos or movies with Bettie Page, Lily St. Cyr, Joan Rydell, Tempest Storm, Lili Dawn and many other tied-models.

After moving to New Jersey, where he founded a publishing company, Klaw later on was condemned for using the U.S. Postage as a means to diffuse obscene stuff and his good luck came to an end.

In the late 60's, many newly founded publishing houses on the West Coast produced scores of magazine and films. Many cult bondage movies emerged in the 70's and the misadventures of new Mistresses and Damsels in Distress, interpreted by starlets.

As for whether bondage may be included in S&M or not, I think that bondage is not so vicious as S&M, and that bondage is instead a sort of Aphrodisiac to experience NEW, Forbidden Sensations.

Utah Supremes: 10% Tax On Strip Clubs Is Constitutional

The Utah Supreme Court has ruled that a state tax on strip clubs is constitutional but that the same tax on escort services is not.

Passed in 2004, the tax levies a statewide 10 percent tax on admission and user fees charged by sexually-explicit businesses, defined as any business where a "nude or partially denuded" employee or contractor "performs any service. Utah-produced merchandise, food and drinks sold by these businesses also are subject to the tax.

and Escort Service Tax is content-neutral when applied to nudity.

The Court, he said, rejected the argument that a ban on nudity was necessarily a ban on the message conveyed, distinguishing nudity as a means of expression rather than protected expression itself.

Conceding that the 30 day exemption period in the law could be viewed as supporting the conclusion that the tax was enacted with an intent to target strip clubs, Durrant said, "One could also view [it] as an attempt to balance the state interest in providing sex offender treatment against the incidental burdens imposed on protected expression."

Regarding the taxing of escort services, Durrant found that the language was fatally overbroad, but opened the door to a legislative revision that included more specific language. "Nowhere does the statute define an escort in terms of nudity," he wrote. "The statute also fails to define the term 'companionship.' Therefore, according to the plain terms of the statute, individuals who are paid for providing care for the elderly as well as those who are paid as tour guides would fall within the definition of an 'escort,' and any person or business who employs them would be subject to the tax."

The statute also levies a tax on escort services, which are defined as "any person who furnishes or arranges for an escort who is compensated to accompany another individual for companionship. An escort is "any individual who is available to the public for the purpose of accompanying another individual" for compensated companionship.

Associate Chief Justice Matthew B. Durrant, in an opinion issued Friday that relied heavily on two U.S. Supreme Court cases, City of Erie v. Pap's A.M. (2000) and United States v. O'Brien (1968) ["Where the Court rejected the proposition that a 'limitless variety of conduct' qualifies as speech simply because it is potentially expressive"], said that the state's Sexually Explicit Business

Did I Ever Tell You The One About... And other strange oddities of the world

Antarctic Team Search For Rare Whisky

A team of New Zealanders is preparing to drill in Antarctica in the New Year, and they hope to strike - whisky.

Among the supplies British explorer Sir Ernest Shackleton abandoned on his unsuccessful 1909 expedition to the pole were two crates of the now extinct rare old brand of McKinlay and Co whisky.

The New Zealanders will use special drills to free the trapped crates and rescue a bottle from the crates, discarded near the Cape Royds hut used by the Nimrod expedition, or at least draw off a sample using a syringe.

The crates were discovered in January 2006, but the bottle couldn't be removed as they were too deeply embedded.

Though the New Zealanders have agreed to try to retrieve some bottles, international protocols agreed by 12 Antarctic Treaty nations say the crates can only be taken off Antarctica for conservation reasons.

The whisky was found under the floorboards of the hut while workers were clearing out a century's worth of ice.

Richard Paterson, Whyte & Mackay's master blender, has said that if he can get a sample, he intends to replicate the famous old whisky.

If the experiment is successful, original McKinlay whisky could be put back on sale. Mr Paterson said the Shackleton expedition's whisky could still be drinkable and taste exactly how it did 100 years ago.

Cannibals Nabbed Selling Corpse To Kebab House

Russian police have arrested three homeless people suspected of eating a 25-year-old man they had butchered and selling other bits of the corpse to a local kebab house.

Suspicious were raised when dismembered parts of a human body were found near a bus stop in the outskirts of the Russian city of Perm, 1,150 km (720 miles) east of Moscow.

Three homeless men with previous criminal records have been arrested on suspicion of setting upon a foe with knives and a hammer before chopping up his corpse to eat, local investigators said.

"After carrying out the crime, the corpse was divided up: part was eaten and part was also sold to a kiosk selling kebabs and pies," the Prosecutor-General's main investigative unit for the Perm region said in a statement issued Friday.

It was not immediately clear from the statement if any of the corpse had been sold to customers.

Couple Arrested After Reporting Stolen Marijuana

A man and woman who reported to police that robbers stole their marijuana are now facing charges themselves. The 32-year-old man and 29-year-old woman told police five armed men came to their Wichita apartment late Monday night and took marijuana.

Police said one suspect accidentally fired his gun and spooked the other suspects. They ran from the apartment to a white Cadillac, dropping marijuana along the way. Police found more marijuana inside the apartment.

'Ninja' Impaled Trying To Jump Over Metal Fence

Seattle police say a man who thought he was a ninja was impaled on a metal fence when he tried to leap over it.

An officer who was looking for an assault victim nearby Monday night heard the man screaming for help. Police supported him to prevent further injuries until medics arrived to take him to Harborview Medical Center. A hospital spokeswoman said Tuesday he was in serious condition in intensive care.

Police spokeswoman Renee Witt wrote in a department Web site posting that officers thought he might have been involved in the reported assault, but the man insisted he was just a ninja trying to clear a 4- to 5-foot-tall fence.

Witt says the man was "overconfident in his abilities," and that alcohol likely played a role.

Gang Killed Humans To Sell Fat

Peruvian police said on Thursday they had broken up a gang that allegedly killed dozens of people and sold their fat to buyers who used it to make cosmetics.

Four Peruvians were arrested on suspicion of kidnapping, murder and trafficking in human fat. In addition to those taken into custody, police said they were searching for others who bought fat from the gang or might have worked with it.

Remains from some of the victims were found at a rural house in the region of Huanuco where the group worked, according to police video.

Police said they were investigating 60 disappearances in the area that might be linked to the gang. The investigation started this month after police heard about a shipment of fat that arrived in Lima by bus from Peru's mountains.

Man Allegedly Paid Teens To Spit In His Face

A 39-year-old Southern California man has been arrested for misdemeanor child annoyance after allegedly paying a teenager $31 to spit in his face. The Ventura County Sheriff's Department says Charles Hersel was arrested Wednesday in a sting operation at a mall in Thousand Oaks. He's free from jail pending a court hearing.

A sheriff's statement says Westlake High School students claimed Hersel paid them to yell profanities, spit and slap him in the face. Several also claimed he offered them cash to urinate and defecate on him.

A motive wasn't clear. Authorities say Hersel contacted some teens through the MySpace social networking site.

7 Surefire Ways To Ruin This Year's Thanksgiving

1. Announce an Illegitimate Child - Did a spring break fling from six years ago recently call to inform you that owe back child-support payment for a son you never even knew existed? Were you freaked out last week when you spotted your very pregnant ex-girlfriend that you hadn't seen in nine months. Make your family freak out even more than you did by bringing up the your child at the dinner table. Challenge yourself to slip it in as casually as possible into conversation with smooth transitions like "Please pass along the stuffing as well as any other advice you would give to a new father."

2. Develop a Dietary Restriction - There's nothing more obnoxious than someone who chooses to live by a pointless dietary restriction. Hence, becoming a vegetarian (vegan if you want to go all out) is a phenomenal way to put stress on the people cooking as well as dominate the dinner conversation by continuously inserting fun facts about how a turkey farm operates. Make sure that you insist there be plenty of meatless options and don't be shy about throwing a fit if the someone mixes up the real gravy with the tofurkey gravy.

3. Label everything in your grandparents house that you want when they die - Don't beat around the bush and act like your grandparents are going to live forever. Be proactive and save the family trouble when the time comes by going through their house and labeling everything you want them to leave you. There's no more practical way to furnish a future apartment than by staking your claims to dusty furniture in the attic, your grandparents new HD TV that some salesman insisted they need, and their prescription drugs that will sell best on a college campus.

4. Bring up politics and abortion - Just when every one's getting along perfectly and complimenting your cousin on how good she looks after she got her second round of adult braces removed, bring up everything controversial that you know about. Keep blurting out key words abortion, republicans, Nancy Pelosi, rap music, and Carrot Top until someone takes your bait and starts yelling about it. No matter what your true thoughts are on the matter, it's extremely important that you take the opposite viewpoint of whoever seems the most eager to fight. Your uncle thinks immigrants should be citizens before they work here, well then you think we should all give up our homes to immigrants and pass a law saying they're the only ones that can run for president.

5. Start telling family secrets - Did your sister fail out of law school but still pretends to be enrolled so she can cash your parents tuition checks? Great fun fact. Did your cousin join a sex commune while he was abroad? Perfect story to share. Take advantage of every conversation lull by throwing out a family secret and seeing what happens next. This is also a useful trick to use when someone draws attention to your flaws. Simply ignore your grandfather's repetitive comments about you not being able to hold down a real job by telling everyone about the time you logged onto your dad's computer and accidentally found his porn stash.

6. Yell at annoying young relatives - Trying to watch the game over the yelling, fighting, and laughter of young relatives can be extremely frustrating and detrimental to your game-watching ability. Take this as an opportunity to do the disciplining that their parents clearly never took the time to do. Make sure to be firm, yet gentle by padding each curse word and violent threat with Thanksgiving imagery that won't completely spoil their image of you. Try starting out with I'm going to beat the cranberry stuffing out of you if you don't shut the fuck up.

7. Get drunk - The easiest and most enjoyable way to ruin Thanksgiving is to get excessively drunk as soon as possible. This will not only help you relax during the day and feel less self-conscious when eating the entire pumpkin pie by yourself, but it will also guarantee that you will get the most attention. Family members will gather in quiet corners and wonder how long you've been an alcoholic while small children will be forced to stay away from your bad influence. While this tactic will guarantee that you have the best Thanksgiving ever, it will also make your invitation to Christmas dinner very questionable.

Gwyneth Paltrow Will Be Cast As Nicole Kidman's Wife In 'The Danish Girl'

The Iron Man star has replaced Charlize Theron to play the character 'Greta,' in the film adapted from David Ebershoff's novel.

Theron recently backed out of the controversial film which tells the story of the first people to undergo a sex-change operation, reports Contactmusic.

Kidman who will play artist Einar Wegener, is also the producer of the film. Director Thomas Alfredson will helm the movie.

NY Court OKs Out-Of-State Gay Marriage Benefits

New York state's top court ruled on Thursday that public officials have the authority to recognize out-of-state gay marriages and pushed state lawmakers to decide whether to legalize same-sex marriage.

Gay marriage opponents had challenged decisions in 2006 by the New York State Department of Civil Service and Westchester County to give health insurance and other benefits to same-sex couples legally married in other states or countries.

The ruling by the New York State Court of Appeals upheld the decision of lower courts, which had dismissed the challenge.

The judges did not take up the broader issue of whether gay marriage is legal. They decided the case on narrower grounds and expressed "hope that the (New York) legislature will address this controversy."

New York's Democrat-controlled State Assembly passed a bill to legalize same-sex marriage in May, but the measure faces a tough battle in the Senate.

New York Governor David Paterson, a Democrat who supports gay marriage, ordered all state agencies in May 2008 to recognize out-of-state gay marriages and has said he would sign a gay marriage bill into law.

Texas Candidate: Gay Marriage Amendment Bans All Marriages

A Texas candidate for attorney general says a clause in the state's gay marriage ban forbids all marriages, the Star-Telegram reported.

Houston attorney Barbara Ann Radnosky says the gay marriage amendment bans all marriages in the Lone Star state.

"You do not have to have a fancy law degree to read this and understand what it plainly says," Radnosky told the paper referring to Subsection B, which says: "This state or a political subdivision of this state may not create or recognize any legal status identical or similar to marriage." The amendment defines marriage as "the union of one man and one woman."

The amendment was approved by the Texas Legislature before being put up for a vote in 2005. Voters overwhelmingly approved the measure.

Radnosky, a Democrat, says the wording of Subsection B effectively "eliminates marriage in Texas," including common-law marriages and blames the state's current attorney general, Republican Greg Abbott, for approving the language of the amendment.

Jerry Strickland, a spokesman for Abbott, however, discontinued her claims, saying, "The Texas Constitution and the marriage statute are entirely constitutional."

"This breeds unneeded arguments, lawsuits and expense which could have been avoided by good lawyering," Radnosky added. "Yes, I believe the clear language of B bans all marriages, and this is indeed a huge mistake."

Chaz Bono: Sex Change Is His 'Best Decision'

Chaz Bono says beginning the sex-change process to turn him from a woman to a man is "the best decision I've ever made."

The 40-year-old writer, activist and reality-TV star, who was born a girl to Sonny Bono and Cher, says he's eight months into the years-long transformation and says he feels great.

Formerly called Chastity, he told ABC's "Good Morning America" on Thursday: "Life is short and life is precious. This is who I am. I need to finally be who I am."

Bono says he always felt like a boy growing up and came out as a lesbian 11 years ago. Now he's undergone gender-reassignment surgery and hormone therapy.

He tells ABC: "To me, gender is between your ears, not between your legs. I've felt male as far back as I can remember."

Levin: Military Gay Ban Hearings Postponed

Promised fall hearings on repeal of the military's ban on open gay service in Congress are likely tabled for now, TheHill.com reported Saturday.

Both chambers of Congress have likely delayed hearings on the issue.

Senator Carl Levin, a Democrat from Michigan, said in a C-SPAN Newsmaker interview to be broadcast Sunday that the Senate Armed Services Committee, which he chairs, will postpone hearings till sometime next year to concentrate on investigating the Fort Hood shootings.

The policy, also known as "don't ask, don't tell," is the 1993 law that prohibits gay and lesbian service members from revealing their sexuality at the risk of losing their jobs.

"This time is not being lost," Levin said referring to the current thinking that lawmakers will not attempt to pass a freestanding bill but are more likely to tuck repeal legislation into next year's military spending bill. That strategy was used earlier this year to approve a bill that added sexual orientation and gender identity to the list of federal hate crimes that includes race, national origin, gender and religion.

Man Pretends to Marry Pretend Girl

A man going by the name of SAL9000 is set to prove just how little effort it takes to get some attention on the Internet by marrying his virtual girlfriend.

Does that mean we have artificial intelligence now capable of emotions? Not quite. Our friend SAL plays a Nintendo DS game called "Love Plus," which is exactly like "World of Warcraft" if all you did in "World of Warcraft" was take pretend people on dates.

Sal proposed to his virtual bride, Nene Anegasaki, with the intention of honeymooning in Guam. Apparently this means the dude took his Nintendo DS to Guam and took some pictures that he can show to his friends and family (assuming he has some that don't have to be programmed to smile and nod).

Once in Guam, the fun was livecast on a Japanese video-sharing site in advance of the public reception in Tokyo.

From there the couple presumably went home to experience a brief period of wedded bliss before she started nagging him about plugging her in to recharge, and he started playing around with someone else's stylus.

8 Feet Of Guinness For A Guinness Largest Glass Of Beer Record

Everybody has grand, dumb ideas when they're drunk, but it takes a dedicated pair of drunks to actually follow through on one. Hats off to David Copley and Eric Johnson, owners of the Auld Dubliner Irish Pub in Tustin, Calif., who did just that by filling an 8-foot-tall glass with 430 gallons of Guinness stout recently.

A crowd of 400 people gathered in the bar's patio to watch the mammoth 900-lb. glass, made of shatter-resistant acrylic, being filled with 2,772 lbs. of beer. Though it has yet to be certified, the feat should earn the bar a place in the Guinness Book of World Records for world's largest glass of beer.

The previous record was set Harry Caray's Italian Steakhouse in Chicago, which filled a tiny 4-foot-tall glass with a measly 1,000 lbs. of beer in 2008.

The Auld Dubliner glass will be on display through January of next year, but the beer won't last that long. "We dipped our glasses in and we have a pump," co-owner Johnson said. "We're going to drink it."

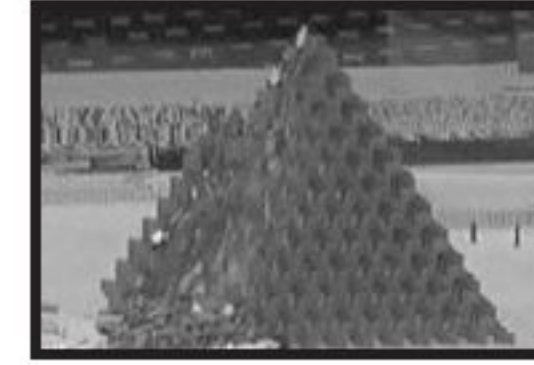

Look for Eric Johnson to set a new record for world's longest continuous urine stream later this week.

Domino World Record Smashed In Style

KA-POW! The world record for toppling dominoes has been broken!

Some 4,491,863 dominoes bit the dust in Holland this weekend, smashing the standing world record of 4,345,027. Both records were set by a man known as Mr. Domino.

Mr. D was helped by a team of 90 domino experts from 14 European countries who worked for two months on the masterpiece, in the Netherlands town of Leeuwarden. The builders used rulers and tweezers to ensure each stone was in its exact spot.

When toppled, the dominoes fell in a sequence lasting one-and-a-half-hours during which the dominoes climbed stairs, unveiled paintings and did all manner of other nerdy things.

Kid Destroys Guitar Windmill Record

A little boy in San Francisco put Pete Townsend to shame, and all for a pair of free sneakers and a chance to get his name on a Web site. He didn't point police to another secret cache of kiddie porn, but he did smash the world record for guitar windmills.

The kid, Spencer Borbon, maniacally whizzed his arm around in a circle 79 times in 30 seconds, beating the previous world record of 72. The whole thing was part of the San Francisco Treasure Island Music festival, where the Universal Record Database was walking around recording video of people breaking world records. Even if Borbon's shoulder will never be the same, at least he has his place on the Internet. That is, until another, younger kid gets hyped up on bug juice and takes him out.

Company Promotes Paid Leave for Unlucky Lovers

A company in Shanghai has promoted a special welfare program that gives employees paid leave if they're unlucky in love, the local portal xinmin.cn reports.

A supervisor surnamed Zhao at the company's human resources department told xinmin.cn that the company will approve the paid leave without proof if any staff member tells the company he or she has failed in love, and every employee can enjoy the two-day leave once every two years.

"With the paid leave, employees will have enough time to accept being unlucky in love, and we hope that the paid leave will make the employees feel at home in the company. Furthermore, an employee in our company also can enjoy three day's paid leave for divorce," Zhao said.

A company employee surnamed Jiao said that he was surprised to hear about the paid leave at first.

"The paid leave creates a warm working environment. Compared to a high salary, a comfortable working environment is more attractive for us," Jiao added.

The report also noted that none of the employees have applied for the paid leave since it was implemented one year ago.

Gu Jun, professor of sociology at Shanghai University, told xinmin.cn that such a move helps build a harmonious company culture.

"More companies should be encouraged to promote such welfare benefits. Since the company grants this benefit, please enjoy it boldly," Gu said.
